Many students find studying to be stressful, boring, and time consuming. The truth is, studying doesn't have to be that way. Studying and then revising a topic through a subject related game can be a good way to break the monotony of sitting and reading through a textbook. It's also helpful because if you're not sure about anything, you can ask. For a subject like Accountancy which is all digits and formulae, such activities/games can rejuvenate the students. There are hardly any games related to this subject in India as well as abroad. Students of class XI Commerce stream were asked to create their own Accounting game on any topic related to Class XI syllabi. They successfully created Accounting Ludo, Accounting Bingo, Accounting Domino, Accounting Snakes & Ladders and various Accounting Puzzles. # Students of a school in Delhi emerge winners in multiple sports activities

Excellence in sports enhances the sense of achievement, logical thinking, strategy building and concentration. What can be learnt on the playground cannot be learnt in the classroom is what Bhargava International School believes in, placing strong emphasis on sports and holistic development of its students via sports. Sports is also beneficial for recreation, improves productivity and fosters social harmony and discipline.

Payas Jain, a class XI student, holds the first rank in Delhi State Youth category and third rank in national and international arena in Cadet Boys category, adding that he represented the country and won silver in the Asian Junior Cadet Table Tennis Championship at Ulaanbaatar, Mongolia, in September 2019. He earned a place for himself in the Asian Table Tennis Squad and bagged gold medals at The International Table Tennis Federation's World Cadet Challenge Polish open at Wroclaw, Poland, in October 2019, the All India National Ranking in Table Tennis Championship Central Zone held in Bikaner, Gujarat under all categories, the Junior Youth Table Tennis Championship in Jaipur in various categories, the Inter-Zone Table Tennis Championship held at Thyagaraj Stadium in December, and the Under-17 Boys Individual Category in 65th School Games Federation of India-School National at Vadodra in January 2020. His triumphs got Payas the title of 'Young Paddler by International Table Tennis Federation in the preparation of Dakar 2020 Young Olympic Games.

Another table tennis star is Aadarsch Om Chhetri, a class VIII student, claims the school. He holds second rank in India and has represented the Indian team at the Asian Junior Cadet Table Tennis Championship. Vanshika won silver in U-17 doubles category, says the school. The school adds that Payas Jain, Yashansh Malik, Aadarsch Om Chhetri and Vanshika Bhargava are selected for Team India 2020.

Recognising the importance of yoga, students of all classes are taught yoga by a trained instructor twice a week. Pupils learn breathing techniques to nourish the inner self and practice "positivity through posture". From suri-sen and Bhujangasana to Gomukhasana and Bhujangasana, both girls and boys can be seen performing in co-ordinated movements.

Judo is another sport where the school students have proved their mettle. The school believes that judo has the power to educate, shape and teach students skills for life. ### Lockdown Diaries: What's keeping young paddler Payas Jain busy?

Payas, who won gold at the 2019 International Table Tennis Federation World Cadet Challenge, is currently spending the enforced lockdown with his family.

Q 12 APRIL 2020 10:30 AM

As sporting action around the world stays at a standstill on account of the coronavirus pandemic, young Indian paddler Payas Jain has managed to set up a makeshift gym at home to keep fit in the absence of competition.

The 15-year-old, who won gold at the 2019 International Table Tennis Federation World Cadet Challenge in Wladyslawowo, Poland, with Team Asia, is currently spending the enforced lockdown with his family in Rohini, Delhi.

Speaking to Sportstar, Payas said he is using the break to focus on his fitness and to practise with his siblings. "It (lockdown) is going great. I do fitness from 11am to 2pm every day. I have a table at home and every evening I play with my brother and sister for a few hours. We also watch matches and analyse our game."

Gym in the time of coronavirus: What is training transfer?

Just in the nick of time, Payas, with the help of his physical trainer, managed to get enough equipment to set up a gym at home. "From sandbags to dumbbells, I have a fair amount of equipment at home. My coach (Anshul Garg) tells me what to do on FaceTime. The routine includes running followed by cardio and then practising specific movements to improve my game. We also do strengthening."

But the youngster, who is ranked 23rd in the world in the juniors, is not all about training.

"In my free time, I watch Netflix. I am mostly completing my shows - Money Heist, The Game Changers and also Bollywood movies like Street Dancer."

When asked whether he is picking up on other skills, Payas said: "I am also doing some meditation and also learning how to dance. I am not trained, but it's something I have always been fond of. I did it (dancing) for a year or so before picking up a TT racket."

Morale boost

Former India coach Massimo Costantini said he sees Payas as the next breakout star in Indian table tennis. Payas was ecstatic when he heard of the compliment and considers it a huge morale booster instead of added pressure.

"It is definitely very encouraging. I believe I can do well and I have already set myself a goal of winning gold at the 2024 Olympics. I am working really hard towards it and it feels great to be praised by such a senior coach," he said.

According to Payas, who is benefiting from an ITTF scholarship, Costantini's involvement and guidance has helped him a great deal in improving his game.

"When he (Costantini) was in India, he helped me a great deal. My father, coach and Massimo often held discussions and he brought technical changes into my game. We also discussed what tournaments I needed to play. He has been a great mentor. He guided me on what camps to attend and which ones to skip. Even now, I turn to him once in a while to seek his guidance," he said.

Born Free But Lives In A Cage

The sky you want is not your own,
The wings you had once grown,
Are now tied down at feet.
You always follow the wind's beat,
Ever followed your own heart beat?
Born free but lives in a cage,
It's okay to be filled with rage.
But beware of keeping it hidden,
For the world is too small for you, kitten.
Is it large? Can it be?
When you are tied down from feet?
Fly high but not too far,
For you have to return in the cage so far.
The way you choose is the way you live,
But did you choose to born free and live in a cage?
It's okay to be filled with rage.
Don't worry, life's too short,
Build your own beautiful fort.
And use the cage as a palace you own,
You have no place for the dreams you've sown
Born free but lives in a cage,
It's okay to be filled with rage.

Free Yet Caged

We all are free yet caged,
Enclosed in a cage of impression.
Wanting to do everything, but not able to Because half the wing is tied, and other half
is free.
Wanting to fly like a bird in the sky,
But forced to do what others want.
Tired of listening about my younger brother
And tell them I am also here.
I wish I could get my childhood back but
time flies in a blink,
I want to share my feelings, but I fear what others think.
This is why I always say,
We all are free yet caged,
Enclosed in a cage of impression.

Fly Away

If you have wings but can't fly,
If you have feet but can't walk.
If you have love but can't sigh,
Can you imagine what it feels like,
Can you imagine how shackled you are
How caged you are.

We watch the others pass like wind,
We know they have all the emotions.
We see them tweak from a tree,
But caged in here does not feel free.
Can you imagine what it feels like,
Can you imagine how confined you are,
How caged you are.
So open your wings and fly away,
No more being caged, no more being scared.
You know you have it, you know you got it,
So just open your wings and fly away.

Nature – Gift of God

Nature is a beautiful gift to cherish
A strong wind flowing over my head
Made me hide under a shed .
Huge droplets of unpredicted rain
Deprived my business of any gain
Though I had to bear loss ,
But nature had one more side of the coin to toss
Nature is never lost

Even when the soil is covered with frost ,
Nature is the biggest force
From trees to animals and
From forests to mountains

Nature is an asset we all should adhere
But also a God's bliss that we should fear
Never outshine its authority
Or it will affect the majority
Always value Mother nature because
Nature is a beautiful gift to cherish
Otherwise the world would perish .

Teachers' Development Programme

The year 2020 was a phase of learning for both teachers and the learners. The traditional method of classroom teaching effectively evolved into the virtual one. The pandemic urged the educational sector to get into a paradigm shift. There was a need of intensive training in virtual teaching methodology for the educators.

The institution conducted ample number of webinars and training modules for the enterprising faculty members. The workshops aimed at developing various skills to stimulate experience, exchange information and professionally equipping teachers to conduct virtual-online classes effectively. The teachers received extensive training in creating question papers on the Google form. It was an acceptance of the new way of learning for both teachers and our students; as the traditional pen paper was replaced by virtual forms. The online classes initially started on Zoom and then moved onto MS Teams. The teachers were trained to conduct Parent Teachers' Meet virtually.

We believe that "leadership and learning are indispensable to each other". The teachers attended nearly 150 webinars during this virtual teaching learning phase to upgrade their online instructional practices and to improve student engagement, perseverance and performance a few glimpses of the same are as following: -

- Online capacity building workshops organized by CBSE for different subjects were attended by the teachers throughout the academic year.
- Anti- Tobacco webinar organized by the District Tobacco Cell, was attended by the entire Staff.
- Diksha is an innovative platform for 'School Education'. It is an initiative by Ministry of Education by Government of India. It is a unique initiative which leverages exiting highly scalable and flexible digital infrastructures. Teachers downloaded the application and actively participated in competency based and experiential learning modules along with the subject relevant courses.
